RESEARCH FOR POLICY AND EVALUATION

Interested in developing your Applied Social Science research skills?

Looking for a research career in government, not-for-profits, or the private sector?

Join our one-year (three-term) Professional Master's Program!

Through courses and a four-month internship, the program focuses on developing students' skills in collecting, analyzing, interpreting and communicating research for real world applications. This combines the research strengths of Western's Faculty of Social Science with the practical tools needed to apply research skills to a variety of settings. The internship cements these skills and provides connections to employment opportunities.

Graduates will be able to develop, evaluate, and enhance policies and programs in a variety of settings, including government, not-for-profit and private sectors.

We aim to build an inclusive student body in terms of background and perspective, including a blend of recent graduates and those drawn from the workforce.
